Subject: Resource & Milestone Meeting

Hello,

Thank all of you who could attend last night's Milestone Meeting for coming and participating at the event! Your time, energy and commitment is appreciated!

Some work group members have indicated an interest in finding out more about cluster/conservation development as it might relate to housing development in Dane County towns. Since there has been a transfer of information between work groups at last night's Milestone Meeting, and some of the Agriculture, Natural, and Cultural Resources work group objectives deal with cluster/conservation subdivision, you will find links for more information on this subject below.

This first link provides a graphic that illustrates what cluster/conservation development "looks like:"

This second link provides an overview of cluster/conservation development as well as a discussion of potential advantages and disadvantages and implications on waste water and farmland.

Please note that goals and objectives from the other two work groups that relate to housing and economic development issues will be consolidated for the Housing & Economic Development Work Group's review at the next meeting on August 18, 2004 from 7p to 9p at the Pyle Center. For your information, the goal and objectives from the Transportation, Utilities and Community Facilities and the Agricultural, Natural, and Cultural Work Groups can be found at:
